

Squan Beach Life-Saving Station

MANASQUAN, MONMOUTH COUNTY, NEW JERSEY

The Squan Beach Life-Saving Station in Manasquan is one of approximately 42 life-saving stations that were situated three and a half miles apart between Sandy Hook and Cape May in the early-20th century. The station was constructed in 1903 in the Duluth style, which was the most popular architectural style for stations in this area. Today, it is one of a few stations that have survived along New Jersey's Atlantic Coastline and retains historical and architectural significance.

- Services: Preparation of a Historic Preservation Plan and National Register Nomination, Design and Contract Documents, Bidding and Contract Administration.
- Construction: Restoration and Rehabilitation of the first floor including providing barrier-free access, and exterior repairs.
- Total Project Grants: $425,000 (New Jersey Historic Trust)
- Total Project Costs: $975,000